3. Half step forward

- The development of e-government was influenced by:
 - The IT lobby
 - The public administration
 - EU legislation

The professionals of RM and AM were completely ignored by both.

3. Half step forward

- Mistranslation of ISO 15489
 - records = recordings
 - document management = records management
 - records center = archival institution
 - capture = collect

3. Half step forward

- Until recently, the National Archives were not particularly interested in the e-records issue.
 - No digital record has been transferred so far to the National Archives.
 - Only a limited number of cases when records have been created in only in a digital environment, and even less selected for permanent preservation.

3. Half step forward

- No interest in academic level
 - Archives staff lacks adequate training
 - The Faculty of Archival Science offered its first course in “Archives and digital heritage“ in 2004, taught by an archivist; he was replaced after one year with an IT specialist
 - The profession of records manager doesn't officially exist
 - There are no higher education courses on electronic records or training in the management of digital archives.

Under these circumstances...

...would be MoReq2 adopted?

Is there a need to make room for the provisions of MoReq2?

4. Adoption of MoReq2

Drivers for change

- Modernisation of the country
- Implementation of EU legislation
- A more deep implementation of e-government, requiring the management and archival of electronic records

5. Adoption of MoReq2 Managing change

a. Implementing changes

b. MoReq2 & Romania

a. Implementing change

- New Strategic Role for the National Archives of Romania as:
 - Leader of the electronic records management domain
 - Provider of legislation, standards, guidance and support for ERM
 - Partner of the IT industry in developing new services and technologies for digital archival

a. Implementing change

- Apply for e-records the same lifecycle model as for managing paper records
- Recognition of electronic records management as a distinct domain of archival science, which uses IT but is not managed by IT

a. Implementing change

- Development of a terminology for ERM in Romanian language. This has implications on the translation of MoReq2
- Development of records management as an academic discipline
- Implementation of a training regime in electronic records management

b. Moreq2 & Romania

- Unlikely to be adopted as guidance in the near future, but:
 - Translation of MoReq2 will raise awareness of the electronic records management discipline and the ERM systems
 - Will support the development of the discipline of electronic records management in Romania

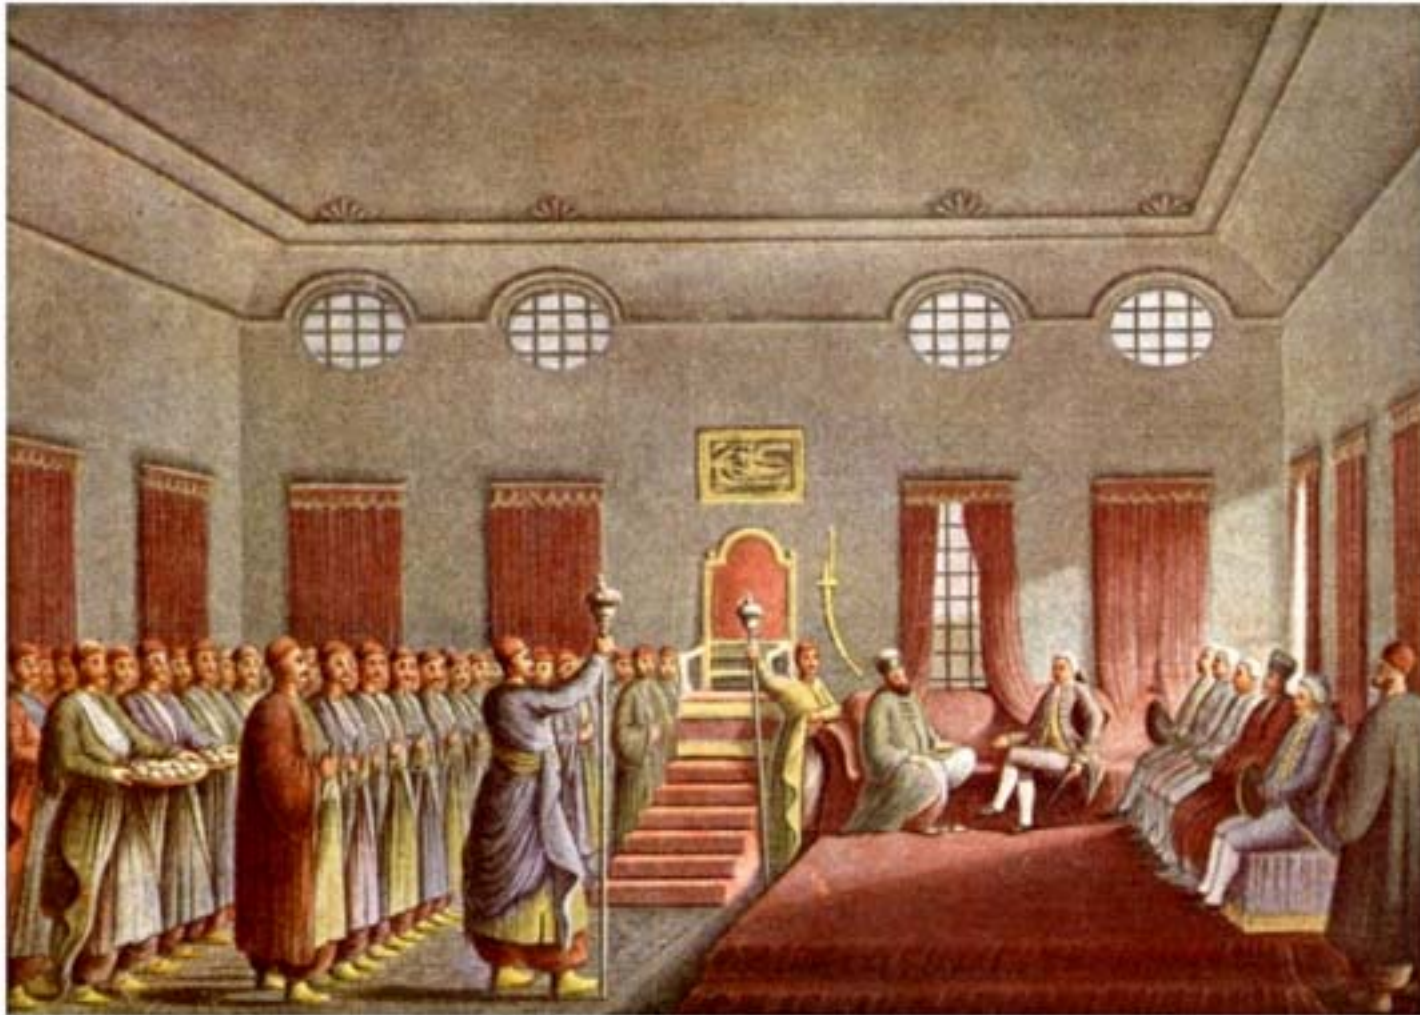

b. Moreq2 & Romania

- The IT industry will have to work with MoReq2 to remain competitive
- Will be used as a learning and training tool in higher education and Academia
- Public bodies will have a guidance for developing ERM systems

Adoption of Moreq2 can be done?

Once upon a time, Romania went from here...

...to here, in less than 40 years:

The answer is YES

Thank you for your attention!
